Green one environmental services

Contaminated soil treatment services:

Green One is implementing the plans issued by the Environmental consulting Office and approved by the National Centre For Environmental Compliance to Decontamination in different types of soil by focusing on mechanical scraping methods, with the possibility of recovering high economic value pollutants from the soil by extracting chemical solvents in the event of economic feasibility and environmental safe conditions.

Green One services for the treatment of contaminated soil include:

- Treatment of contaminated soil with chemicals, fuel and other hazardous liquids for surface and depth spills that do not contact groundwater level.
- Treatment of contaminated soil by hazardous liquids around fuel tanks and terrestrial chemicals and treatment of pollution from leaks of hazardous liquids from underground pumping and injection tubes.
- Remove the pollution on the concrete floors of hazardous material store.
- The treatment of contamination soil containing high concentrations of heavy and toxic elements by industrial and agricultural activities at depths that do not reach groundwater level.

Rehabilitation services for environmentally degraded areas

The service covers all places where the environmental balance has been disrupted as a result of mining, industrial and agricultural activities, including land-level restoration and vegetation cover prior to the exploitation of mineral ores or prior to the onset of the activity causing the environmental imbalance.

Green One services for the rehabilitation of environmentally affected areas include:

- Implementation of closure plans for quarries, mines and mining concession areas.
- Implementation of afforestation and reforestation plans for areas that have been affected by mining and industrial activities.
- Implementation of rehabilitation plans for random waste landfill and areas affected by the dumping of construction waste.
